Speaker topic examples:

What is a Substance Use Disorder?

This presentation reviews the science and biology of addiction. It includes a discussion on the difference between recreational use, heavy use, and the various indicators of a substance use disorder. The information is provided in a practical and straightforward manner and active audience participation is encouraged.

Intervention, Treatment and Recovery

This presentation provides a comprehensive and realistic look at the various levels of care. It includes information on when an intervention is indicated and on the treatment and recovery process. There is an emphasis on various pathways to recovery.

What is Family Recovery?

This presentation explores the concept and practice of Family Recovery; the importance of awareness and education on the real and measurable impact of a loved one's substance use on family members; and the critical role that family support plays in recovery from substance use disorders.

Positive Psychology

Positive Psychology is a distinct discipline that emphasizes what is “right” with a person and focuses on flourishing rather than “getting by”. This presentation provides an overview of Positive Psychology, along with some solid takeaways/tools for immediate use.

SBIRT: Screening, Brief Intervention and Referral to Treatment

SBIRT is a comprehensive, integrated public health approach to the delivery of early intervention and treatment services for persons with substance use disorders, as well as those who are at risk of developing these disorders. This training is designed to train primary care physicians, healthcare workers, criminal justice providers and human service providers.

Emerging Role of Technology in Chronic Disease Management

Technology is more personal than ever before, and it is the key to changing the way we engage with individuals struggling with chronic health issues. This presentation takes a critical look at new technologies available, and how these technologies can be utilized to reach more people in innovative and effective ways. Questions of compliance, privacy, and information collection specific to healthcare professionals will be explored.
